Some Experiences with Foreign Officers

A [illegible] of [illegible] a certain class of the military [illegible] foreign [illegible] to tender their services [illegible] Republic.

[illegible] for example, Major Von Hammerstein, [illegible] General McClellan's Staff, was mustered out [illegible] He drew $1,700 [illegible] pay and allowances [illegible] New York. A [illegible] gambler [illegible] Austrian and Prussian armies. [illegible] the temptation to try his luck with so [illegible] in the New York gambling dens. [illegible] The next morning [illegible] destitute, and [illegible] with a [illegible] this high born Austrian noble and [illegible] private in our regular army [illegible] musket.

Major [illegible] was an officer of [illegible] [illegible] inherited the title of Baron. It was [illegible] Austria [illegible] [illegible] He was here first [illegible] Staff. Subsequently he was [illegible] McClellan's staff, and to McDowell's. Finally [illegible] a regiment. And now [illegible] he is serving as a private in the regular army.

[illegible] that of Colonel [illegible] Red[illegible] [illegible] the distinguished Prussian statesman and [illegible] Redowitz. This [illegible] [illegible] staff of General McClellan [illegible] of General Heintzelman. He was [illegible] of drawing pay several times [illegible] applying to different pay[masters] [illegible] certifying each that he had not been previously paid [illegible] quarter. He was dismissed [illegible] Appealing to a [illegible] officer, he succeeded [illegible] a temporary loan of a hundred dollars and [illegible] the Government, he has [illegible] California. He was an officer in the Prussian [illegible] also have been overwhelmed with [illegible] debt [illegible]

[illegible] with the Prussian service say that [illegible] Prince Salm[-Salm] [illegible] the stupidest officer in it. The stupid fell [illegible] all the circumstances [illegible] to marry [illegible] American woman whom he [illegible] Havana. This pretty woman made a desperate [illegible] of the present administration [illegible] into the regular army. She [illegible] Assistant Secretary [illegible] [illegible] succeeding [illegible] appointment. Failing, however [illegible] she did get a Presidential permit for bringing out 2,000 bales of cotton [illegible] which with reasonable activity she could have made something handsome before all trade [illegible] removed.

[illegible] the title in his own [illegible] buried under debts [illegible] kind and [illegible] In New York the once [illegible] arrested for debt, and he [illegible] to Washington [illegible] exceedingly small hopes of get[ting] [illegible] he has prospered by [illegible] and in unstinted doles [illegible] a Brevet Brigadier [illegible] commandant of the post at Atlanta.

Washington [illegible] refuge to the whole class of [illegible] the dudes of their own countries [illegible] adventurers they [illegible] the gambling [illegible] None of them were [illegible] the confusion that marked [illegible] went a great ways [illegible] entrance to the best so[ciety] [illegible] with consideration as [illegible] representatives of [illegible] and historical English fam[ilies]. He turned out to be [illegible] a German Israelite [illegible] in the army of his native country [illegible] under the banner of Garibaldi. He was an excellent officer, but whether justly or unjustly [illegible] obliged to surrender his [illegible] fell into the hands of the Government. [illegible] evidence that he had ever coun[selled] [illegible] on the part of the enemy, or [illegible] know of them, but the Government was afraid to trust him and he never afterward held any place [illegible] though he was for a long time retained [illegible] half pay.

[illegible] from one of the northern prov[inces] [illegible] thought at the outbreak of the war that he would like to get a Second Lieutenancy in the regular army. A relative of his, a native of (or rather a [illegible]) [illegible] had been a teacher of languages [illegible] in Washington, and was able [illegible] the recommendation of [illegible] Armed with these, he went to the President [illegible] he thought the Germans had sup[port]ed [illegible] that they were entitled to some re[cognition] [illegible] none. [illegible] A few days afterward, [illegible] received a commission as Captain in [illegible] service. I believe he afterward [illegible]

Captain [illegible] tells in illustration of a fellow who ap[plied] [illegible] at the Navy Department early in 1861 for a position. He represented himself as having been an Admiral in the Turkish Navy, and for a time he deceived everybody. Nothing less than a command would suit him. But the Captain was suspicious and preferred to investigate. The man was going far toward making a [illegible] against the Navy Department when [illegible] disclosed the facts of his career and showed him to have been pronounced a European chain gang.

So [illegible] of the anomalies which our dealings with [illegible] foreign service have shown us. Over against them let us never fail gratefully to set such names as Asboth, Osterhaus, Sigel, Carl Schurz, Zagonyi— [illegible] no more, but foreign Americans, by the baptism of blood of our struggle and triumph.—Correspondent [illegible] Cincinnati Gazette.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON AND THE DEMOCRACY.—We take the following from the Boston, Massachusetts, Journal:

A distinguished gentleman, in conversation with the President a few days ago, at Washington, remarked to him: "I perceive, Mr. Johnson, that the Copperhead Democracy are making great efforts to capture our President—to withdraw him from the party which nominated and elected him, and to put him into the keeping of the party which slandered and vilified him before the election, and which plotted his assassination afterward, and I should like to know their chances of success." The President replied: "I think I know them too well to be in danger of capture by them, and I suppose they know me well enough not to make the attempt."

STERN WHEEL PREACHERS.—Parson Brownlow describes what he calls a "stern wheel preacher." He is one who went into the rebellion with sole et [illegible], chafing and fretting, and boasting and blowing that the South would achieve her independence dressed in fine cloth and lapping their huge whiskers. He comes out with a shattered stern wheel, and one horse on, gone dressed in gray home spun, asking to be allowed to take the amnesty oath, as a means of saving his property, and coolly saying that he never took any part in trying to break up the Government.

The very large fortune in silver and gold that Mr. Davis wanted to carry off with him after the collapse of the Confederacy was not such a big pile after all. A Washington dispatch of the 19th says: "Jeff Davis's treasure brought here by the Treasury agent has been counted in the Treasurer's office and found to consist of $7,000 in gold [illegible] $9,000 in silver coin, mostly Mexican dollars. The image and 30 bars of silver, total value slightly over $100,000."

TRIAL OF JEFF DAVIS.—The New York Times, which is supposed to share the confidence of the Administration, says: "It is now settled that the rebel chief will be tried for treason, and as soon as practicable. Ample time has been given for all popular excitement to subside, so that his trial may be as dispassionate as possible, and for the complete preparation by his counsel of every available defence in law and in fact."

The Knoxville Whig says: "We understand that the head devils of the late rebellion, whose property has been turned over to Union men by justices of the country in suits of damages, have sent their [illegible] and their women back to sue for [illegible] their effects, and that they have employed [illegible] lawyers to go at the work regularly [illegible] many days of sorrow and anxiety [illegible]

The Government at Washington is determined [illegible] the practice of selling captive In[dians] [illegible] in New Mexico. The Superin[tendent] [illegible] in that Territory has [illegible] that all his efforts will hereafter be [illegible] and preventing a traffic con[trary] [illegible] and incompatible with republican institutions.

THE PIRATE BURLEY.—The lake pirate Bennett G. Burley, who was confined in the jail at [illegible] succeeded in prying open a window [illegible] making his escape on the afternoon of [illegible] September. He left a note for the jailor [illegible] having gone out for a walk, perhaps [illegible] return shortly.

[illegible] North Post grumbles at [illegible] Whig [illegible] [illegible] the peace [illegible] the [illegible] the war [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of the South [illegible] the war [illegible] [illegible] nobody left down there [illegible] Whig [illegible] the very [illegible]

W[illegible] daily to study new evidence of the spirit [illegible] at the South reckons the chivalry of [illegible] The same old arrogance that was such [illegible] of the slave holding States still [illegible] the [illegible] South [illegible] spite of the terrible [illegible] [illegible] has received.

PREPARING FOR THE FUTURE.—The Government is preparing for the future. [illegible] fleet of the nation is to be [illegible] [illegible] ware, and the hundreds of thousands of serviceable muskets and rifles and sabres and sets of accouterments are being repaired and stored in the various arsenals and forts throughout the country. It would be interesting to know the number of weapons of war of all kinds now in the hands of the Government and the amount of munitions ready for use. The small arms must number millions, the cannon tens of thousands, and the food for both can scarcely be estimated. During the struggle there have been more than two millions of men under arms in the United States at the same time, and the weapons used were the best known to warfare. Many thousands have of course been destroyed, but the arsenals have more than compensated for the losses, and the number steadily increased, by home manufacture and importation all through the war. Of the arms used by the rebel armies, probably one half fell into the hands of the Government. All of these immense quantities of arms and military stores are being laid away by the Government for future use.

THE NUMBER OF PARDONS.—The published statement that over one hundred thousand applications for pardon under the amnesty proclamation have been received by the President is incorrect. The number is a little over fifteen thousand. The number of pardon-seekers here, which is already very large, is increased by every train and boat from the South. In four of the principal hotels here, out of an aggregate of 1,849 guests over 800 are Southerners. Where and how these people get money to pay their expenses is a mystery to everybody. They drink freely at the bars, have wine at the table d'hote, and in their private rooms smoke expensive cigars, drive fast horses and indulge in other pastimes totally beyond the reach of beggars.

ANOTHER QUARTZ FIELD.—We learn from the Colville mail carrier that a Major Robinson, who has been prospecting during the summer in the mountains north west of Colville, has discovered a very rich gold and silver quartz lode in the vicinity of Suswap Lake, on the head waters of the Okanakane. Major R., who is a practical assayer, gave the lodge a pretty thorough testing and found it to contain gold and silver at an average of $1800 to the ton of rock. The news of the discovery has created some excitement among the people at Colville, and the "quartz mania" is likely to become as general there as in almost all the localities in the upper country.—Walla Walla Statesman.

THE TOWER OF BABEL.—Remains of the Tower of Babel, says Galignani, still exist, and are visible from a very great distance. Each side of the quadrangular basis measures two hundred yards in length, and the brick of which it is composed are of the purest white clay, with a very slight brownish tint. The bricks before baking were covered with characters traced in a clear and regular style. The bitumen which served for cement was derived from a fountain which still exists near the tower, and which flows with such abundance that it soon forms a stream, and would invade the neighboring river did not the natives from time to time set fire to the stream of bitumen.

The pardoning of rebels is not bearing very good fruit. Herschel V. Johnson after having been pardoned, talked treason very loudly at Washington, saying he knew of no power that could prevent him expressing his sentiments.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 27, 186

Who are the Intolerant?

It [illegible] warm [illegible] sympathies are enlisted [illegible] [illegible] waiting [illegible] can [illegible] and [illegible] ity toward all who profess sentiments different from their own. A numerous class of our public newspapers habitually fill their columns with the offensive, the most violent denunciations of those whom they call "Yankee Puritans." The hatred which large numbers among us cherish toward the people of the East, particularly toward those of New England—is limited by nothing except their lack of power to make their enmity more [illegible]. This feeling on the part of these irrational and intolerant persons is not one of mere dislike toward their countrymen—it takes the shape of almost deadly hostility. For the existence of this enmity certain persons whose efforts are wholly directed to the work of inflaming the minds of their illiterate and unthinking followers are chiefly responsible. Judging these promoters of strife by their works the spirit of Ate seems to possess them. They denounce those whom they hate, with all the opprobrious terms which malice can invent, accuse them of every enormity, endeavor to make it appear that they are savage and inhuman as barbarians, not pausing to reflect that by their conduct they are proving themselves just what they assert others to be. They complain of the intolerance of others; in justice others have the better right to complain of them. Themselves are the persons who need to reform their course. If there be a mote in their neighbor's eye, there is a beam in their own.

It is hardly possible to realize to what extremes of madness men will permit this passionate hatred of the "Puritans" to lead them. In the San Francisco Examiner of a recent date, we find the following extract. From that paper as well as from two or three of a like kind in this State numerous extracts written in a similar spirit could be given: "Sooner than a child of ours should be miseducated and polluted in one of these Puritan seminaries, we would see it growing up without knowing a letter in the book." Shall men who entertain such sentiments as these be listened to in seriousness when they talk of the intolerance of others? Do they not betray themselves and show that the fault they complain of in others is rather their own? The real cause of their fury is that other persons have stepped between them and the accomplishment of their wrong desires. It tries them sorely to be held in check by others, and when their wicked purposes are defeated they are filled with intense hatred toward those by whom they are foiled. There is a direct antagonism between their sentiments and those of their "Puritan" opponents. The latter are now triumphant, and because the former must yield they hate their adversaries and become their malignant enemies.

In the class of publications we have mentioned we never find a word that seems to have been written in a conciliatory spirit. Their every expression breathes defiance and scorn. Why talk about quieting party or social animosities when an antagonist's mouth is still full of bitter crimination? Why try to appease the rage of an enemy when every effort of the kind is repelled? The truth is, those who so vehemently accuse loyal men of possessing an intolerant spirit do not want to allay or suppress political irritations. They do not want, nor will they permit their own anger to cool. They are completely under the control of that evil spirit which broods in them the bigotry and intolerance which they so loudly censure in other men. All this is doubtless the result of that same bad cause which a few years ago brought our people into war. The process of assimilation will proceed slowly and years must elapse before it becomes complete. But with the complete removal of the cause of these dissensions the dissensions themselves will be removed.

WONDERFUL ACUTENESS.—The Review of this week has a scurrilous article against William Cullen Bryant. The provocation is this. A few weeks ago the New York Evening Post, Mr. Bryant's paper, contained a sarcastic article in relation to the frequent arrests the British authorities are now making in Ireland. The Post turned against the English the same language which they have used during five years in relation to us, asking ironically, "What is the boasted liberty of a British subject worth when innocent men, charged with no crime, are thus immured in Bastiles?" The stupid fellow of the Review raves through half a column, greatly exercised that the Post should speak in this way of English liberty and yet be regardless of that of our own countrymen. The fellow had not the discernment to see that the Post was merely improving the occasion to turn one of their own weapons against the British tories, and that the whole article is written in a vein of the most biting sarcasm, and for no other purpose than to retort upon the English journals for their similar language toward us.

DICK TURNER.—The Chicago Republican says that Dick Turner, the former keeper of Libby Prison, is reduced from a weight of 165 pounds to a mere skeleton, weighing scarcely 100 pounds. About two months since he effected his escape from the dungeon in which he was confined in Libby, and after three weeks of diligent search was found in a house on Oregon Hill, Richmond. He has since been confined in a cell eight by twelve, seen by and seeing only the surgeon, who daily visits him. He is furnished with a Bible, a copy of Shakspeare, and a few magazines for reading.

The above is dedicated to the Confederate Democrat, in the expectation that it will prove a valuable text for another indignant discourse on the "brutality of Stanton." Will not the Democrat let us hear a passionate wail for Dick Turner next. We fear that paper has forgotten him.

The Southern people it appears are now very anxious to have the national troops who were lately withdrawn from portions of their country sent back again. The soldiers were removed at the earnest importunity of the sensitive chivalry, but now the same persons to whom the presence of the national troops was so odious, find that they need protection against each other and ask for the hateful Yankees to come back again. Our chivalrous brethren are exceedingly hard to please.

MAIL BY STEAMER.—We learn that a proposition has been made to the Postoffice Department to give us a weekly mail by steamer from San Francisco. This would be a most desirable acquisition for us and particularly advantageous to the commercial interests of the State, but we have little expectation of its being secured. The cost it is said would be $125,000 per annum.

EAGLE CREEK.—A correspondent informs us that the quartz interests of Eagle Creek district are looking up. Some valuable gold and silver lodes have recently been discovered and are proving remarkably rich. Two quartz mills are now on their way to that locality. They will not [illegible] work this fall. An [illegible] are told we shall have hands [illegible] returns from Eagle Creek.

All the [illegible] papers of California are advocating the passage of a Registry Act for that State. We need the same kind of an act for Oregon and we trust the Legislature will see to it that we have one.

The census of Illinois just completed shows that the population of that State is in the neighborhood of [illegible].

DISPATCHES TO THE [illegible]

DATES TO OCTOBER 24

The Fenians in Canada

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The Herald's Toronto correspondent says: The members of the Irish [illegible] Government and supporters of English rule in Canada are in a state of great agitation in regard to the [illegible] [illegible] Fenian [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Government has [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] have been strengthened [illegible] [illegible] the Irish [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the loyalty [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the Fenians [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] will find their way into the hands [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] land are merely a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cover the grand design which [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the order in [illegible] [illegible] Atlantic shall [illegible] Canada [illegible] [illegible] independent State and place it under the protection of the United States.

Our Relations with China

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The approaching change in our relations with China is discussed with earnestness in the English press. The Shanghai correspondent of the London Times states that both the American and national representatives have been treated with ill [illegible] and dislike, and in some cases contempt. He attributes this fact partly to the absence of the American [illegible] in China waters and partly to the habit of making consuls of missionaries. Now that a United States fleet is on the road to China an extraordinary change is anticipated in the mutual diplomatic relations of the two countries. The [illegible] especially asks whether the first introduction of the American fleet will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] The American citizen Burge [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] made by the United States Consuls is believed to have been either starved or executed.

The Liverpool [illegible] believes that in future the English character in China will be [illegible] affected by American rivalry.

Things in Mississippi

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The Herald's Jackson (Mississippi) correspondent presents an unpleasant picture of the political and social state of affairs in that State. The Legislature which met last Monday has some difficult work before it, the worst of which will probably be to [illegible] [illegible] the finances which are in a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. The debt of the State is large, though many people favor a second resort to the expedients of repudiation, it is thought Mississippi has had enough of this, and will not try it again, except as far as regards the satisfaction of her [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] believed will be ignored. Another question with which members will have to deal is that relative to admitting negro testimony in the courts. The majority of them are said to be in favor of this [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Sharkey, who insists on [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] United States Senate [illegible] [illegible] choosing the State Printer a gentleman who has always [illegible] [illegible]. These are only a few of the many difficulties with which the Legislature will have to deal. [illegible] industry of the State has been paralyzed by the war and there is a great want of the native energy necessary to revive it. Some practical but [illegible] [illegible] have [illegible] [illegible] the Mississippi negroes with a story that next Christmas day the Government intend [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hence many of them refuse to enter into contracts with the planters for a period extending beyond that time.

Indian Affairs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says that the letter received at the Indian Bureau to-day from Fort Sullivan, October 6th, says that the Commissioners despatched to treat with the Indians of that section have arrived, but only a few Indians were at the fort. Eight hundred lodges were assembled one hundred and twenty miles above, who were deterred from treating with delegates at Fort Sullivan from apprehensions that they were only to be brought together to be entrapped. The letter states that it is evident that the delegates are [illegible] two weeks to [illegible] to achieve a successful conference with the tribes. The buffalo season has commenced and great hunts would [illegible] be inaugurated. The Commissioners intended to start for home on the 20th inst.

Rebel Debt Repudiated by North Carolina.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Herald's Raleigh correspondent says the ordinance repudiating the rebel debt, passed the North Carolina State Convention by a vote of 84 to 12. The ordinance for the purpose of raising a militia force to suppress outlaws was also passed. The Convention adjourned Thursday last to meet again in the [illegible] of next May.

Election matters are beginning to be agitated. Governor Holden and Jonathan Worth, the present State Treasurer, are both out to-day as candidates for Governor. Worth will be supported by the secession element, but he is a strong Union man and in the legislature of 1860 voted against calling a Convention to take the State out of the Union.

Lewis Haynes, Private Secretary to Governor Holden, has resigned and runs for Congress in the Randolph district on the Worth ticket.

Those of the secessionists who [illegible] [illegible] Holden will probably unite the true Union vote on him and elect him.

California News

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—A suit is on trial in the 12th District Court before a jury, the result of which will settle a point of interest to the mercantile community. In July last the firm of Wilson & Stevens negotiated through a broker a loan for five thousand five hundred dollars from R. Whitney & Co., giving as collateral security 336 cases of candles stored in the Pacific [illegible] house. The building and [illegible] were destroyed [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Wilson & Stevens refused to pay the note, alleging as the goods were delivered to [illegible] R. Whitney & Co. the latter should suffer the loss, which principle [illegible] R. Whitney & Co. combat by bringing suit now on trial.

P. Hafman, a private in Co. D, 2d Artillery, committed suicide on Tuesday by shooting himself through the head with his rifle.

M. Mayer, lately a trader at Virginia, Nevada, filed his application in insolvency in the County Court to-day. Liabilities $42,000.

A man named [illegible] employed at Howard, Coleman & Co.'s oil works on Townsend street, was severely burned this morning by an explosion of the gas in the still.

A dispatch has been received at Headquarters stating that Captain [illegible] Hall, who is charged with murder, was arrested at [illegible] yesterday by Major Morton. He will be brought to San Francisco and be tried by Court martial at the Presidio.

San Francisco Legal Tender rates [illegible]
New York Gold Quotations [illegible]

[illegible] It has been shown that a small sum of money is necessary to construct a road from the head of Pen d'Oreille lake to Hell Gate, in the [illegible] country, for the purpose of obtaining [illegible] Oregon to the mining regions of Montana. [illegible] road was recommended [illegible] Donaldson [illegible] force exploring party, and at this time is a necessary link in the route between the two sections. The letter of Mr. Sanborn to W. S. Ladd, Esq. [illegible] published on the 28th [illegible] and gives the reasons why our people should take the matter in hand. He shows that the Mullan road cannot be made of any use for wagons [illegible] and then for a few [illegible] There is now a good road from Walla Walla to [illegible] Pend Oreille Lake, and from any part of the mines [illegible] the mountains to the [illegible] Indian Agency [illegible] Hell Gate. There is now being a steamboat built [illegible] Pend d'Oreille Lake, and the completion of [illegible] the whole trade of those [illegible] extensive mines. From the [illegible] the new region [illegible] The cheapest rates from St. Louis are [illegible] prices, but [illegible] pound is easy enough, when the route [illegible] opened to travel. Mr. Sanborn states that the [illegible] in the Territory of Montana [illegible] of St. Louis, and [illegible] charter can be obtained [illegible] Hell Gate [illegible] Agency to the head of the lake [illegible] if they wish to [illegible] their own responsibility. [illegible] looked at [illegible] and we suggest that [illegible] business here, who [illegible] means to make money for themselves [illegible] the city, at once [illegible] the road in condition, and make it [illegible] and [illegible] highway [illegible] rapidly populated, and there [illegible] population who [illegible] become the base of their supplies [illegible] of necessity purchase largely [illegible] we reach her mines [illegible] middle or last of July [illegible] make some effort in the direction of securing [illegible] this matter. The following shows the character [illegible] a certain extent, of [illegible] Montana [illegible] we extract a short paragraph from the Helena [illegible] of the Lewiston Radiator: "[illegible] Messrs. Dwight and Bacon, [illegible] assurance that the [illegible] wholly without energy, and further [illegible] children are found [illegible] both sides over the [illegible] Oregon, that isolated state [illegible] reaches out her hand with the products of her soil, and causes [illegible] of her's, she [illegible] the quality of her products [illegible] Encourage this good beginning.

[illegible] A. Fanst, clerk for H. Hartlieb, druggist, on First street in this city, was arrested and [illegible] jail last evening on a charge of appropriating [illegible] to his employer for his own [illegible] not to have been what is styled a [illegible] but on the contrary has been quite [illegible] enjoyed a good reputation, and the [illegible] was placed in his integrity by Mr. Hartlieb, whom he has robbed, and who, even now, [illegible] is firmly established, by the circumstances of the [illegible] feels a deep sympathy for the accused. Fanst [illegible] of a small amount when being taken to jail by the officer, and a subsequent search of his person [illegible] a sum of $160, secreted in a secret pocket. He will have an examination to-day before Judge Hoffman.

[illegible]—The steamship Active landed Capt. [illegible] of Volunteer Infantry at Fort Vancouver [illegible] night, from Fort Steilacoom, where they have been stationed for some months past. They were [illegible] at the latter post by a company of veterans who [illegible] Sherman when he took the "heart" [illegible] late rebel Confederacy. Before leaving Steilacoom [illegible] troops under command of Capt. Crandall held a [illegible] and turned over by a unanimous vote their [illegible] and balance of winter supplies, valued at [illegible] dollars to the veterans. The latter [illegible] of Col. Ross thanked the volunteers [illegible] and accepted of the substantial gift.

[illegible] LOST.—The beautiful tableaux of Milton's [illegible] Lost was repeated to another crowded audience [illegible]. The best evidence that could be offered [illegible] the interest taken in these paintings by our [illegible] is in the fact that last evening persons [illegible] who were among the first to witness [illegible] were to be seen in the audience, responding [illegible] to the remarkable effects of the magic [illegible] scenes of the scenes portrayed, to describe [illegible] the most distinct faculty of the mind of [illegible] conception the work is above criticism [illegible] are not surprised at its great success in this [illegible] communities. A number of handsome presents [illegible] distributed to the audience last evening, as will [illegible] this evening.

[illegible] TO THE OWYHEE.—The steamer Owyhee, on the [illegible] trip from Wallula to Celilo on Tuesday last, [illegible] steam chest. Nobody was hurt, and the injury [illegible] was unimportant. This is the nearest [illegible] that has ever occurred of the Columbia [illegible] this cause, as we are informed by the Dalles [illegible] from some defect in the material which had [illegible] most rigid scrutiny. But two explosions of [illegible] have ever occurred on Oregon waters, the [illegible] occurrences both being on the Willamette [illegible] at Canemah in 1854, and the Elk [illegible] at some point above Canemah. There [illegible] loss of life by the explosion of the Gazelle, [illegible] persons being killed, but no losses of life [illegible] from the explosion of the Elk.

[illegible] ON THE WILLAMETTE.—The People's Transportation Company are determined that so long as there [illegible] channel of the Willamette to float a boat [illegible] to send their steamers to Salem, and [illegible] beyond as they can ascend. The Reliance [illegible] was dispatched yesterday. One will [illegible] to-morrow and another on Monday next [illegible] and the Active are also running. So far there [illegible] material interruption to the navigation [illegible] Willamette this year, and now that the [illegible] to descend, fall wheat and navigation will [illegible]. The first water was let into the great [illegible] at the falls yesterday.

[illegible] OF THE ACTIVE.—The steamship Active, Capt. [illegible] her wharf yesterday morning at [illegible] o'clock, [illegible] hours from Victoria, having in the mean time, [illegible] Fort Vancouver, landing a company of troops, [illegible] etc. She made the run from Victoria [illegible] in just twenty-four hours, from Tuesday [illegible] Wednesday evening. Her passengers were [illegible] San Francisco, and were placed on board the [illegible]. She brings 30 tons of freight, consisting of [illegible] porter, etc., besides 11 tons of salt. S. District Court, her [illegible] $60,000 and bonds executed for that sum, [illegible] was then released, and she will take her departure [illegible] this morning at six o'clock.

H. Courtney, [illegible] very creditable affair. The wall conforms to [illegible] of the street with the established grade [illegible] feet in length by about 10½ feet in height [illegible] feet thick. The center is mounted by [illegible] way and leads to the interior by a flight [illegible] of the same material.

[illegible] We are reminded of chilly, damp December, [illegible] the past two days very much. Rusty stoves [illegible] and furs are sought after. Ladies [illegible] would be uncomfortable without them. By the [illegible] just in the nick of time on Wednesday [illegible] of the finest lot of furs that have ever [illegible] at his auction and commission house. [illegible]

[illegible]—The monster serpent seen in the [illegible] this city recently, has again shown his head [illegible] water, but as usual, the man seeing him had no [illegible] to secure the destruction of the reptile. He is a young man of considerable [illegible] and outside of his political proclivities [illegible] the "Democrat" [illegible]

SANTIAM MINES.—Mr. Isaac Moores has just returned to Salem from a short tour to those mines and reports matters progressing. When he left the newly erected saw mill was running and there will now be no delay for the want of lumber. We are not aware that any other mining region possesses half the advantages as regards the [illegible] quantity and quality of lumber as that of the Santiam mines. South of the mining [illegible] purpose tunnelling during the forth[illegible] winter.

The Walla Walla Annexation Movement.

The following has been sent us from Walla Walla with a request to publish:

In pursuance of a call made, at a meeting of members of the Bar of the First Judicial District, W. T., held October [illegible], 1865, for a mass meeting of the citizens of Walla Walla county, to consider the propriety of having Walla Walla [illegible] a [illegible] number of citizens met at the Court House in the city of Walla Walla [illegible]

[illegible]

The Committee reported as follows:

Resolved, That the Governor of the State of Oregon is respectfully requested to transmit to the Legislature of the State of Oregon at a Special Session in December [illegible] of these resolutions.

Resolved, That we strongly censure Hon. J. E. Wyche, Judge of this District for failure to perform his official duties in this District.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. H. LASATER,
A. KYGER, Committee,
[illegible]

A motion was made to adopt the report of the Committee, whereupon J. H. [illegible] offered the following as a substitute for said report.

Resolved, That His Excellency, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, be petitioned to remove the Hon. J. E. Wyche from his position as Judge of the First Judicial District, W. T. [illegible] some competent Jurist who resides [illegible] District [illegible]

The substitute was tabled and the report of the Committee, after a discussion, by Mr. Cain, Langford and others, for, and Blewett against, was adopted.

On motion of J. H. Lasater, the Chair appointed A. J. Cain, A. L. Brown and H. P. Isaacs a Committee to draft and circulate two petitions, one to the Congress of the United States, and the other to the Legislature of the State of Oregon, requesting them to admit the county of Walla Walla into the State of Oregon.

On motion of W. G. Langford, the Secretary was instructed to furnish a copy of the proceedings of this meeting to the Walla Walla Statesman and the OREGONIAN for publication.

On motion, the meeting adjourned sine die.

J. H. BLEWETT, Secretary.

TEXTUOUS SEXAGENERATION [illegible].—A local superintendent of freedmen at Camden, Arkansas, recently issued a circular defining the duties of planters in reference to their late bondmen, and has received a reply thereto from one of the former at the hands of a contraband, as follows:

"The bearer of this circular I consider my property, having seen no enactment of the Federal Congress, or of our State Government, authorizing any one to deprive him of me. When I am perfectly satisfied that the slaves are emancipated by such authority as is regarded constitutional by our higher court of law and equity, then, and not till then, will I make any contract with a slave, nor regard them in any other light than the property of those who have purchased or raised them; and I am therefore the owner of the boy who bears this note."

The gentleman in this benighted state of mind was immediately fined $[illegible] for the above expression of rights.

ALABAMA RECONSTRUCTION.—The ordinance recognizing the utter destruction of slavery passed the Alabama reconstruction convention on the afternoon of September 23d, after five days' warm debate and excitement. The vote stood 89 to 3. Seven members only were absent. The ordinance is as follows:

Be it ordained by the people of the State of Alabama, in Convention assembled, that as the institution of slavery has been destroyed in the State of Alabama, hereafter there shall be neither slavery or involuntary servitude in this State otherwise than for the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall be duly convicted; and,

Be it further ordained, that the Constitution be amended by striking out all provisions in relation to slaves and slavery; and,

Be it further ordained, that it shall be the duty of the Legislature at its next session, to pass such laws as will protect the freedmen of this State in the full enjoyment of all their rights of personal property, and guard the State against any evils that may arise from their sudden emancipation.

FOUND TO BE INSANE.—Tung Chong, the Celestial, who desired to take a little recreation, and stopping into a buggy, which was left standing on Kearny street, with the horse attached, and started leisurely on a drive [illegible] the [illegible], was on yesterday delivered [illegible] of Judge Shepheard to his friends, it being found that he was insane. The fact of a Chinaman so far forgetting his sneaking petit larceny proclivities as to attempt so bold robbery of stealing a horse and buggy in broad daylight, was of itself strong presumptive evidence of his insanity. He won't do for California, so will probably be sent to China.—Flag.

SAN FRANCISCO MINT.—The coinage of the Mint for the quarter ending September 30th, was $8,781,500, the largest ever coined in a corresponding quarter.

The murderer of General McCook in 1862 was recently shot in prison in Nashville by his guard.

THE OFFENSE IS RANK.—We hold it inexcusable in any person, male or female, when they subject us to an annoyance which a very little trouble on their part would obviate. Especially is this the case where the unfortunate possessor of a bad breath will persist in button holding and intruding his views upon us, to our manifest mental and physical discomfort. If these good people would use the Sozodont it would not only render them acceptable acquaintances, but would at once greatly improve their teeth and breath.

MISSOURI CITY.—Hark, do you hear that hoarse cough, and that disturbed breathing? Ah mother, your darling child, perhaps your only one, has an attack of the croup, run quickly, and get your bottle of Newell's Pulmonary Syrup, give it freely and save the life of [illegible] light of your household. Be watchful in the future, and upon the slightest indication of a cold resort at once to the "Syrup."

Every man of family could save from fifty to one hundred dollars a year, by constantly keeping a bottle of Hall's Pulmonary Balsam in his house, as one dose will always cure a cold when it first comes on, thereby averting fever and billious complaints. It is sold for 50 cents only.

A Rebel General on Jeff Davis

In the [illegible] number of Harper's Magazine appears an article on Jeff Davis's Administration from the pen of Thomas Jordan, a person quite well remembered here. After Jordan took his departure from [illegible] he became Beauregard's Chief of Staff and a Major General in the rebel army. A more conceited, consummate villain and withal, a more despicable puppy than this same Tom Jordan was known the whole time never had an existence. We give the following extracts from the article, [illegible] for the purpose of showing in what estimation one of these traitorous scoundrels holds the other.

ONE OF DAVIS'S FAVORITES

Mr. Davis had been at West Point and subsequently served for several years in the dragoons at a frontier post with a subaltern officer to whom it happened he became attached. About the time the former resigned his commission to turn planter in Mississippi, the latter was disabled by an accident, quit his border post, likewise, went to his home, studied medicine, and turned parish doctor. Mr. Davis became in time a politician; Lieut. Northrop a Catholic convert, but so eccentric and full of mental crotchets as to be generally regarded in Charleston as of unsound intellect and unfit for the management of his own small affairs. He had not served long enough in the army, nor had been thrown into connection with considerable [illegible] as to acquire familiarity with military administration; neither had his retired habits of life, his cast of thought, or avocations in Charleston brought him in relation with men engaged in large commercial affairs, or turned his mind to the study of such subjects, and in that way attained that breadth of view and knowledge of general business details and of men which may make up for the want of professional bureau experience after a separation of 25 years from army life.

This man with whom Mr. Davis had no personal association since they were cavalry lieutenants together on the Indian frontier, he did not hesitate to make his chief of subsistence nor scruple to entrust with the organization and administration of a bureau upon which the very existence of the Confederate armies must depend, and for the labors of which it is apparent the soundest practical order of intellect was essential. One member of Mr. Davis's Cabinet at least knew the local repute of Dr. Northrop, and we assert that had the inquiry been made in Charleston, his pre-eminent unfitness would have been universally certified. As might be anticipated, his administration took all the characteristics of that unhealthy brain. Mr. Davis supported him however in every vagary, permitted him to override all opposition, and ignored the views and wishes of every army commander, when, as was of daily occurrence, they chanced to differ from those of Col. Northrop. Indeed the crazy courses in which this man was suffered to indulge to the mortal injury of every Confederate army, are incredible.

But we have not the space for their relation, which would fill a volume. One example must serve to illustrate the surprising character of an administration which made success impossible. All reinforcements, ammunition, ordnance and the greater part of the quartermasters' supplies were necessarily transported to the Confederate forces assembled at Manassas Junction by the Alexandria and Orange Railroad, which of course was thus tasked to the utmost tension of its resources. But another railroad, branching from it at Manassas, communicated with the most fertile region of Virginia, the famous Shenandoah Valley, which teemed with subsistence that was also abundant in the adjoining counties of Fauquier and Loudon. Not required for transportation of troops or ordnance supplies, that road was therefore available for the almost exclusive use of the Subsistence Department, and substantial supplies we repeat, lay convenient to it sufficient for all the forces the Confederates could possibly muster in that quarter. Nothing, indeed, could be more favorable for the Confederates than the arrangement of these two divergent roads.

But all this was lost sight of by Col. Northrop, who by some influence was led to determine that subsistence officers with Gen. Beauregard should not draw their flour or meat either from the rich garners and stores of Loudon, Fauquier, or the Valley counties. Forbidding his subordinates imperatively and angrily from purchasing supplies within easy reach, and with ample means of otherwise idle transportation at hand, leaving them to fall into the hands of the enemy, he set other subordinates to gathering subsistence in the rear of the army, which he was obliged to send over the already overburdened Alexandria and Orange Railroad, for which he had to pay much more than such supplies could have been bought for in the valley or in Loudon. The consequences were that there was never in depot such a supply of subsistence as Gen. Beauregard needed, and there was not one day's rations for the army at the time of the battle of Manassas, (or Bull Run, as it is usually styled) nor more than forty-eight hours supplies for weeks afterward of the material part of the ration. Gen. Beauregard having urged the provision of a fortnight's supply for some 20,000 to 25,000 men, Northrop fell into a passion, wrote to the General a letter of surpassing insolence, and at the same time relieved the staff officer from duty who, under General Beauregard's orders, had attempted to remove the evil. Mr. Davis, blind to the consequences, obdurately sustained this extraordinary conduct.

THE REBEL ARMY

Davis, like McClellan, opposed the division of the army into corps.

Meantime Mr. Davis had visited headquarters. A discussion had likewise grown up between him and his generals relative to the organization of their army. He had taken it into his head to direct that the troops of a State should all be brigaded together and commanded by brigadiers from such State. With some exceptions, thought to be specially for the good of the service, this had been already done. But it chanced that one of these very exceptions was in the way of the promotion of a brother in law to the command of a brigade, and could not be tolerated. At the time the division of the army into two corps was objected to. Long communications were written on this subject by Mr. Davis and his Secretary of War, that will amaze the military reader who, we are sure, will be at loss to understand with what possible end, other than as an "apple of discord," this discussion was cast between Mr. Davis and his generals.

On the 20th of October Mr. Davis himself characterized the division as irregular, and in conflict with law as well as "the plainest principles of military organization." Intermixed was also the question of the position of General Beauregard, who, as "second in command," Mr. Davis thought should not have "special charge of any subdivision"—that is, corps—of that army, "because in the absence of General Johnston" Beauregard's "succession to the command of the whole would not disturb the relations of the officer and troops" nor "involve any changes of position on the line occupied." Moreover his acquaintance with the whole body of the army and the absence of any identification with a part of them, would better qualify him for the succession.

Mr. Benjamin thrown forward to reinforce these curious notions of his chief with "nice sharp quillets of the law," does it with characteristic assumption of superior knowledge even of the details of military organization, while attributing ignorance to the generals of the laws germain to the subject. "I beg to say, in all kindness," writes the lawyer, "that it is not your position which is false, but your organization of the army as established by the acts of Congress, and I feel confident you cannot have studied the legislation of Congress relative to the army. * * *

I have entered into these details because, in a conversation with the President since his return from your headquarters, he has informed me that he found the same views as to the organization of the army which you seem to entertain, very generally prevalent."

ONE OF DAVIS'S PLANS

He would not give up his own settled policy of dispersion, his waste of defensive resources in the attempted defense of every threatened position. He proposed, however, an operation instead which may be fairly taken as a measure of his calibre in war plans. Gen. Sickles was posted at the time with an isolated force—about one weak division—on the Maryland shore, opposite [illegible] Evansport, on the Virginia shore, then occupied by the Confederates. This force Mr. Davis proposed to capture by a coup de main. A glance at the map will show that the attacking party, (with scantiest possible means of ferriage in small boats), must cross the Potomac, there even [illegible] navigable and full of [illegible] ships of war [illegible] of the Pawnee. Were a surprise effected, it would be impossible for the Confederates to get away with impunity, much less to carry off the fruits of victory. [illegible] Washington, the alarm must be immediate; federal war ships would take positions above and below Evansport, so as to command and render passage of the river impracticable, it being impossible from the features of the country for the Confederates to occupy two points on the river with batteries within which the movement might be securely made. These views forcibly presented to him by his generals, he could not combat and the project fell still born. He then returned to Richmond, [illegible] afterward to look with marked disfavor upon all the wishes and views of both Johnston and Beauregard affecting the army they commanded, even [illegible] to confer the grade of brigadier general on their respective chiefs of staff, [illegible] the officers [illegible] the reserves of [illegible] and experience [illegible] that as [illegible] [illegible] the most [illegible] and most responsible posts.

[illegible] CAMPAIGN

About the middle of May, 1864, Gen. Beauregard reached Drury's Bluff below Richmond, and had an interview with Gen. Bragg, at the time exercising a species of general command. This officer appeared to apprehend that General Lee, yielding to the pressure of superior numbers, must before long give way and [illegible] to Richmond. Beauregard replied that he [illegible] the situation [illegible] as entirely retrievable if the right remedy was promptly applied. He then pointed out the isolated situation of Butler's [illegible] affording an opportunity for [illegible] him with a superior force, and that [illegible] might [illegible] Gen. Lee would furnish 10,000 men.

Falling upon Butler under such circumstances General Beauregard thought his capture was inevitable, and with him must fall the [illegible]. This effected at a [illegible] moment he would throw his whole force upon Grant's flank while Gen. Lee made an attack in front. All circumstances favored the plan and Gen. Bragg expressed his approbation. Mr. Davis afterward [illegible] Beauregard, who explained all its details and earnestly urged the attempt. Mr. Davis would not be impressed, but objected that it would involve the retrograde of Gen. Lee from his position at Spottsylvania Court house, which [illegible] thought of. "Yes," replied the General, "what [illegible] that when it will enable him [illegible] two or three days at most to gain a great victory." [illegible] when, like the Titan, he would touch the earth [illegible] and all the stronger.

This force of argument was fruitless. Nothing that affected Gen. Lee's army at present, however temporarily, could be entertained. [illegible] had said that he might beat Butler without the force he desired, though it would be, like so many other Confederate successes, without material profit. This ability to gain the color of victory caught Mr. Davis's attention and the attempt must be made. It was made. Butler was thrust from his position the next day, but, just as Beauregard predicted, no substantial results followed. [illegible] In the end [illegible] as might have been anticipated [illegible] General Lee was forced step by step to follow the march of his opponent.

DAVIS'S STRATEGY AGAINST SHERMAN

Great sacrifices had now become inevitable. The "heroic treatment" [illegible] the sick man [illegible] especially after the fall of Savannah was this urged upon those in power, who so little comprehended the crisis as the antidote. Even when Gen. Beauregard directed the evacuation of Charleston, and urged a similar course with respect to Wilmington, so as to provide a force with which to fall upon Sherman, Mr. Davis wrote such a despatch to Gen. Hardee, commanding in Charleston as led him to suspend the evacuation and oblige Beauregard to assume command and to direct imperatively the measure to be completed. Of course Wilmington [illegible] since the fall of Fort Fisher, was held to the last, and with no force afield to check his course Sherman marched like fate through the heart of the country.

HIS CIVIL ADMINISTRATION

When Mr. Toombs quit the Cabinet to be come a brigadier General, Mr. Hunter of Virginia took his place, which he soon left for reasons not best known to himself to take the seat of Senator in Congress, only secured after a warm contest. There was a Virginia statesman pre eminently fitted to succeed Mr. Hunter in the Cabinet. We mean W. C. Rives, whom all recognized as a man of great breadth and accuracy of culture, enlarged views of statesmanship and who having served as a diplomatist with high credit, was regarded as of a grade superior to those generally employed in that capacity by the United States. His connection with the Cabinet must have given weight to the cause abroad. But Mr. Davis could not stifle that characteristic distrust and intolerance of superior men of independent minds which have made him, by his course as President of the Confederate States, at once a patricide and moral suicide. It was enough that Mr. Rives was brought to his notice as one whom the people would like to see among his advisers. That looked like dictation, like an interference with his prerogative. Judah P. Benjamin was transferred to the State Department, Gen. Randolph—as it happened a gentleman of real administrative ability as well as too much independence to remain a cabinet officer merely in name—was made Secretary of War, though at the time little known for capacity beyond the place of his residence.

A little later Mr. Davis also appointed as his Attorney General—the law adviser of his government—a gentleman of [illegible] [illegible] worth but who at the time was a Lieutenant Colonel under Gen. Bragg, in arrest under charges for an act of recent insubordination of such flagrant character as to make Gen. [illegible] place him for a time in close arrest in his tent in charge of an armed sentinel.

As a natural consequence of the predominant qualities of the man there immediately grew up in the South a party of "President's Friends," from whose ranks, as far as possible, were drawn the occupants of all civil places. Men for the most part malleable to his will, who, looking up to him as the highest source of wisdom in both civil and military affairs, uphold his views and wishes as the only safe rule and law for the times. Thus in a little while almost every person of ability, nearly every one of spirit was driven from the councils of the South and the direction of affairs, leaving the government to a large degree in the hands of those from whom efficient administration was not to be expected, selected as they were for instruments thought to be best adapted to his purpose—that of absorbing in himself all the substantial functions of the State.

The longer he held power the narrower grew his conceptions, the more imperious his will, until to differ from or cross the [illegible] of his fancies, or even to run counter to the plans and wishes of his favorites, became a personal offense. No man in as high and critical a position ever less understood the value of wise independent ministers, or was less able to give up a minor personal object for the sake of a major advantage.

BLACKBERRY AND RASPBERRY BUSHES.—Instead of waiting for the canes to die now that they have done bearing it is better to cut them down, thus giving the new growth all the [illegible]. All new canes should be cut except four to six in the hill, or, if in drills, six in a foot will be sufficient. The rows should be four feet apart. When the plants grow too rank, it is well to nip the ends, thus producing side shoots and making more of a bush. Blackberries should be treated in the same manner. Blackberry bushes [illegible] best to train to a fence or trellis. Wooden slats are better than wire for this purpose. Both blackberry and raspberry bushes should be mulched in the fall with plenty of manure, and in the spring forked in. This treatment will tell on the future crop.

Soap suds, although generally [illegible] only fit for being run off into the common sewer in the easiest and most expeditious manner possible, are, nevertheless, highly beneficial vegetable stimulants as well as insect preventives. Hence they should never be wasted, more especially by parties having gardens. As their application [illegible] and whether in winter or summer will show itself, [illegible] not only on ordinary vegetable crops, but also on berry bushes, shrubs, border flowers and even window pot plants. [illegible] [illegible] cabbages [illegible] will prevent or at least mitigate the mischief done by the green fly and caterpillars.

AVERAGE [illegible] WASHED WOOL.—Dr. Randall, in answer to a correspondent, states in the Rural New Yorker that his impression is that a select flock of one hundred Merinos breeding ewes and one ram, kept in the best manner, would annually produce [illegible] for two consecutive years [illegible] seven and a half to eight pounds per head. Washed as they [illegible] now wash them they would produce [illegible] per head, [illegible] in Australia [illegible] would produce at least [illegible] per head.

[illegible] [illegible] extensively engaged in growing [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] grown and highly remunerative [illegible] [illegible]

Nothing looks better than a garden. You may go out and look at it [illegible] from day to day [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] All the [illegible] results of a garden [illegible]

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the Lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
